

For the prevention and cure of BILIOUS and MALIGNANT FEVER is recommended
HARRIS' ANTIBILIOUS PILLS
THIS Medicine has been attended with a degree of success highly grateful to the inventor's feelings in several parts of the West Indies and in the Southern and Middle States, &c.

The testimony of a number of persons can be adduced, who have reason to believe that a timely use of this salutary remedy has, under Providence, preserved their lives when in the most alarming circumstances.

It is not indeed presumptuously proposed as an infallible cure, but the inventor has every possible reason that can result from extensive experience for believing that a dose of these Pills taken once in every two weeks during the prevalence of our bilious fevers, will prove an infallible preventive; and further,
that in the earlier stages of those diseases their use will very generally succeed in restoring health, and frequently in cases esteemed desperate and beyond the power of common remedies.

The operation of these pills is perfectly mild, so as to be used with safety by persons in every situation and of every age.
They are excellently adapted to carry off superfluous bile and prevent its morbid secretions—to restore and amend the appetite—to produce a free perspiration and thereby prevent colds which are often fatal consequences. A dose never fails to remove a cold if taken on its first appearance: they are celebrated for removing habitual costiveness—sickness at the stomach and severe head-ache—and ought to be taken by all persons on a change of climate.

They have been found remarkably efficacious in preventing and curing disorders attendant on long voyages, and should be procured and carefully preserved for use by every seaman.

Hamilton's Elixir,
A sovereign remedy for colds, obsteinate coughs, asthma, sore throats, catarrhs, and approaching consumptions.—
To persons who have children afflicted with the HOOPING COUGH, this discovery is of the first magnitude, as it affords immediate relief, checks the progress, and in a short time entirely removes the most cruel disorders to which children are liable. The Elixir is perfectly agreeable, and the dose so small that no difficulty arises in taking it.

Hamilton's Grand Restorative,
Is recommended as an invaluable medicine for the speedy relief and permanent cure of Nervous Disorders Violent cramps in Consumptions the stomach and Lowness of spirits back
Loss of appetite Indigestion
Impurity of blood Melancholy
Hysterical affections Gout in the stomach Inward weakness Pains in the limbs and debility Relaxations, etc.

Hamilton's Essence and Extract of Mustard.
A safe and effectual remedy for acute and chronic rheumatism, gout, rheumatic gout, palsy, lumbago, numbness, white swellings, chilblains, sprains, bruises, pain
in the face and neck, etc. etc.

Lee's Ointment for the Itch.
Warranted an infallible remedy at one application, may be used with perfect safety by pregnant women, or on infants a week old, not containing a particle of mercury or any dangerous ingredient whatever, and not accompanied with that tormenting smart which attends the application of other remedies.

Lahn's true & genuine German Corn Plaster.
An infallible remedy for corns, speedily removing them root and branch, without giving any pain.

The Genuine Persian Lotion.
So celebrated among the fashionable throughout Europe, is an invaluable cosmetic, perfectly innocent and safe, free from corrosive and repellent minerals,
the basis of other lotions, and of unparalleled efficacy in removing blemishes
of the face and skin, freckles, pimples, inflammatory redness, scurf, tetter, ringworms, sunburns, prickly heat, &c.

Hahn's genuine Eye Water,
A sovereign remedy for all diseases of the eyes, whether the effect of nature weakness or of accident.

Tooth Ache Drops.
The only remedy yet discovered which gives immediate and lasting relief in the most severe instances.

Lee's Infallible Ague and Fever Drops
For the cure of agues, remittent and intermittent fevers.

At the place of sale pamphlets may be had gratis, describing cures performed by the above medicines; the number, importance and respectability of which, fully justify every article of this advertisement.

Proposals

FOR Publishing a Subscription, and now ready for the press, a series of historical volumes, which when finished will assume the title of

Universal History Americanised;
Or, an historical view of Europe, Asia, Africa and America, from the earliest records to the nineteenth century—with a particular reference to the state of society, literature, religion, and form of government in the United States of America.

BY DAVID RAMSAY, M. D.
Life is so short and time so valuable, that it were happy for us if all great works were reduced to their quintessence.
Sir William Jones.

PROSPECTUS.

THE Asiatic part of this work contains a general view of the antediluvians—the general deluge—the re-settlement of the globe after that great event—the primitive postdiluvian nations, which were formed in Asia, the cradle of the world. Their various ramifications, revolutions, and of the general course of Empire.

AFRICA.
The African part, contains a concise history of Egypt, Carthage, Numidia, Mauritania, Abyssinia, of the Piratical States, and the Hottentots, with a grouped view of its uncivilized settlements.

EUROPE.
The European part, contains the history of Greece and Rome, from their origin to their dissolution—of the various nations which were conquered by them—and of the nations by which the Romans themselves were finally conquered, and of the nations which were formed from the fragments of the Roman Empire, and the various revolutions of the latter, together with a view of the nations which never were subjected to the Romans.

AMERICA.
The American part, contains a general history of the Western continent, under the heads of Free, European, and Aboriginal or unconquered America. The first contains a history of the United States, from their first settlement as English Colonies till the present time. The second, of all parts dependant on Europe. And the third, of all that are still owned by the Aborigines.

It is expected that the whole will be comprised in 10 or 12 octavo volumes, of between four and five hundred pages each—to be printed in Philadelphia, on good paper and fair types, for $3 1-8 per volume, in sheep binding, or $4 1-3 Calf Gilt, to be paid for on delivery.

AUTHORITIES.

This work has been in contemplation upwards of 40 years. The project of it was conceived in 1786, on reading the Universal History, then recently edited in 60 volumes, by a society of gentlemen in England. The original idea of extracting the quintessence of that voluminous work, which contained the most complete system of history the world had then seen, has ever since been enlarging and improving by an attentive perusal of the histories written by Robertson, Hume, Gibbon, and other modern authors—of the Asiatic researches of the works of Sir William Jones, and other learned Orientalists—the publications of intelligent travellers, who, in the course of the last half century have explored almost every region of the globe. These collectively have thrown a blaze of light on countries comparatively unknown, and on portions, both of ancient and modern history which were confused and obscure at the period when the writers of the Universal History published their work. The arrangement of materials collected from these sources commenced in the year 1780, when, in consequence of the surrender of Charleston to Sir Henry Clinton, the author was suddenly released from a sea of business and sent as a prisoner of war to the British Garrison then in St. Augustine; and there confined for eleven months, without any peculiar employment. Steady progress has been made for the last ten years in correcting and transcribing the work for publication.

UNITED STATES.

The History of the United States is given at full length—that of foreign countries in more or less expended or contracted in proportion to the intrinsic importance of each—its tendency to illustrate portions of Holy Writ—the Greek and Latin Classics—and also in proportion to its connexion with the U. States, or as furnishing useful practical information to its citizens, or as the paternal soil of their ancestors.

The above sketch of the nature and objects of this immense work, which has occupied the attention of the Author for upwards of 40 years, was found among his papers, and is now given to the public in his own words. Since that period, a few chapters have been added—the which brings it down to the close of the last war.

The publication commences with a third impression of the History of the U. States, in three volumes, which is all that has ever appeared. The whole will not be delivered under 15 or 20 months. It is proper to state, that the gentlemen who have the direction of it are neither bookellers nor printers, and receive no pecuniary consideration for their trouble—but are willing to make the necessary advances to carry it into execution provided the sale is warranted by public patronage. The profits arising are to be appropriated for the support and education of his children, four of each sex; to them its success is a matter of deep importance.

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT AT WASHINGTON.

Tuesday, March 24, 1818.

The bill for preserving inviolate the neutral relations of the United States, as reported with amendments by a committee of the whole, was yesterday brought under the consideration of the house of representatives, and underwent a considerable share of discussion—not as much on the bill itself as on various amendments proposed to it, most of which were negative, and therefore are not necessary to be mentioned. Of those adopted, the only one worth particularizing in this place was one proposed by Gen. Smith of Maryland, which contains a proviso that "nothing contained in the act shall be construed to affect the rights of citizens of the United States, who may prosecute in the courts of the United States for property taken from them on the high seas." Mr. Lowndes made an ineffectual attempt to get rid of the bill, by a motion for an indefinite postponement; the question on which was taken by yeas and nays, and negatived by 79 yeas to 72 yeas.

The bill was then ordered to be engrossed and read a third time—the question on it being also taken by yeas and nays and carried by 95 yeas to 51 nays. I presume the bill as amended will pass this morning.

THE INDIAN WAR.

Our accounts from Milledgeville, under date of the 13th inst. furnish us the pleasing occasion of contradicting the report of the disaster said to have occurred to General Gaines; though it was not without some foundation, an accident having occurred, of the particulars of which we have no information, except that some person was drowned. From the present state of our information, we incline to believe that Major Wright escaped as well as General Gaines. The reports from the interior are so vague as to lose all definite shape before they reach even Milledgeville.

A skirmish took place on the 9th inst. between a party of militia of Telfair county, and fifty or sixty Indians, which resulted in the rout of the militia. Several are known to be killed, among whom is Major Cothran, and the fate of several others is not known. A part of the detachment escaped, bringing off with them one badly wounded. Several Indians were killed in the skirmish, which it is believed, the Indians brought on by the stratagem of letting a young man, whom they scalped a few days before, escape to the settlement.

In consequence of this skirmish, the governor had ordered the Palaski troop of cavalry to scour the frontier.

Milledgeville, March 10.

The detachment of troops from Tennessee, under Col. Hayne, of the regular army, about 1200 strong, reached the Chatahochie on Wednesday last, and are by this time near Fort Scott, if they have not arrived there. McIntosh, the distinguished friendly chief, has gone with his warriors to the aid of General Jackson.

Four persons, two men, a woman and her child, were attacked about ten days past by the savages, on the public road, between the Creek Agency and Fort Mitchell. One of the men was shot dead and scalped, the other though wounded made his escape; the woman was shot in three places and tomahawked but not severely; the child had a cut on the head, and a rent made with a knife. They were both found alive and conveyed to Fort Mitchell, where the woman under the benevolent care of Major Hughes, U. States factor, is likely to recover—the child has died. The woman says there were fifteen Indians, but in her situation it is not likely she could ascertain the number.

A letter from a gentleman at the Creek Agency, dated the 5th inst. says, "The Tennessee troops passed by Fort Mitchell on Monday last, on their march for head quarters."

Hartford, March 1.

The army is now on its march to Fort Early. We are informed that General Jackson has ordered all the Indians who are friendly, to join his command immediately, or they will be treated as hostiles. Col. Davis, inspector general, direct from Washington City, informs us, that it is the intention of the general government, to occupy the Florida immediately, and expect that orders have been sent to Gen. Jackson to that effect.

Norfolk, March 20.

The sloop Pilot, capt. Endicott, from Great Egg Harbor, bound to Fredericksburg, put into Hampton Roads on Tuesday night on account of the gale. Capt. E. reports that in passing Hog Island on Tuesday forenoon he saw a hermaphrodite brig, which he took to be American, aground on Matchapungo Shoals, with reefed fore-top sail and fore-top-mast stay set, and the sea breaking over her to the height of the fore-top. Capt. E. endeavored to go to her assistance, but was prevented by the breakers. He thinks, from his knowledge of the situation she was in, that she must have gone to pieces.

Capt. E. also informs that he passed, the same day, on the upper end of the Middle Ground, a sloop of about 50 or 60 tons burthen, bottom upwards; but, on account of the heavy sea which was then running, was unable to get near enough to obtain a description of her. As the tide rolled her along, her mast alternately appeared and disappeared at the surface of the water.

LATEST FROM FRANCE.

By the arrival this morning of the ship Rubicon, captain Holdridge, in 34 days from Havre de Grace, we have received a file of Paris papers to the 29th of Jan. inclusive. Should we find anything worth translating, it shall be given in our next.

Rice was selling at Havre at 52 francs, and at Paris at 55.

A letter dated at Bordeaux on the 2d of February, and received last evening by the ship Ellen, captain Rowland, mentions that flour and grain were on the decline. The French minister of marine had issued an order that all vessels arriving in France from the West Indies and United States during the winter, and that have a clean bill of health, certified by the French consul, will only ride a precautionary quarantine of three days.

Paris, January 27.

It is said the meeting of many great monarchs is to take place at Dusseldorf, and not at Prague.

The court of Madrid was on the 15th instant in mourning for the death of the infant child of the king. It was, however, expected that the wife of the infant Don Carlos would soon make up the loss.

Extract of a letter from a respectable merchant in Liverpool to a mercantile house in Philadelphia, dated Jan. 29.

Sir,—For the last three weeks our market has been on the decline for cotton, and prices have given way fully 10 per lb. on uplands and New-Orleans. At present it is impossible to say whether or not the present prices will be supported. Most people are inclined to think they will not, from the extensive supplies we shall receive in the course of next month from all parts of the United States, as well as from the Brazils and the East Indies, which will naturally produce a pressure on the market, as there are already some imports necessitated to make sales at the market prices, whatever it may be; it is therefore quite preposterous for the merchants in America to give such extravagant prices for cotton, which must be attended with a heavy loss, by making investments in an article at a price so much above its real value. There is no prospect of cotton ever rising so high again in this market as it has done during the last year, as the supplies are increasing from all quarters every month; it will therefore be much better to abstain from shipping this article altogether, unless it can be laid in at lower prices, which I apprehend the planter can afford to do at one half the present rates, and be well paid for his labor.

There has been a very good demand for pot and pearl ashes during this month, which still continues, and the annexed prices are very readily obtained. Our present stock of this article is not heavy.

For the last two weeks, and during part of this, our market was dull for wheat and flour, but yesterday and today has produced a considerable demand for both wheat and flour, with an advance on the present prices of 6d per bushel on wheat, and 1s per barrel on flour—There does not remain a doubt of the ports being open, the 15th proximo, for the free importation of foreign wheat and flour, as two of the six weeks have already expired which determine this point, and the average of the twelve maritime districts for the last two weeks is above 8 1/2 per quarter.

Rice continues but in limited request, and prices have given way again—there has been but little doing in this article for some time past.

Turpentine has been in brisk demand for the last week, and the different parcels that have lately arrived have met with an immediate sale at 17 to 18s per cwt. according to quality; our stocks of this article are again reduced very low, as part of the late importations have been purchased for the Hall market.

Tar continues in good demand at the annexed prices.

Our tobacco market continues very steady, and every prospect of prices improving, as a great proportion of our present stock is in few hands, who have made extensive purchases in this article on speculation, and have at present the command of the market as to price.

Flaxseed is very much enquired for, but the holders of this article look for much higher prices than the annexed quotations, which will prevent much business being done until the season is farther advanced.

Dollars continue at 5s 3 1/2 per ounce. American stock at 105 for 6 per cent.

TO WILLIAM WIRT, ESQ.

Author of the Life of Patrick Henry.

Sir—When I take the liberty of addressing you, not through the insipid form of the third person, but directly, I do not mean to invite your attention to the cavils of a critic or to the unqualified encomiums of a panegyrist. Having more interesting objects in view, you are requested to attend to a duty incumbent on one who undertakes to portray a character from history; or from the testimony of living witnesses, or from the evidence of collected tradition, to enable gratitude and admiration to pay a calm and reasonable tribute to the genius and virtues of "the mighty dead."—That duty is this: that you promptly correct errors when truth shall have made them manifest, and offered evidence from which you may amend them.

Before, sir, I distinctly state to you the twofold object I contemplate, I must gratefully my feelings by adding my voice to the general voice which tells you in flattering terms, that you have performed a real service to your country by your Life of Henry: that while your country cherishes an ardent gratitude to her statesmen, orators and warriors, she is proud that she possesses one whose eloquence can so adequately speak her feelings, and do justice to her illustrious citizens.

Were you, sir, less known and admired as a writer, I would not, when addressing you on matters of higher import, stop to remark that no business, no occupations, however urgent and continuous, can excuse you from the use of trite and vulgar phrases. Describing Mr. Henry's dress, when he first appeared in William-burg, you use the expressions "a suit which had suffered very considerably in the service." Speaking of Mr. Wythe, you say, "whatever he had to do, was to be done openly and above board." These, it may be said, are trivial faults—but let me add, they are contemptible.

I regret also, that you did not more frequently recollect that the office of a biographer was not that of an eulogist.—When you say, among other similar things, "that it was almost better that one should never have been born," than bear the sarcasms of Henry; that Mr. Ronald "was pale and breathless," because Henry looked at him and pronounced a word, you speak more with the exaggeration than the animation of youth. No one would have objected had you used them in those instances, to the vivid but chaste colorings of a poet, or to the striking and illustrative amplifications of an orator. "Nunc majora canamus." You have done great justice to the character of R. H. Lee, as an orator, but you have done him injustice as a statesman. Through the greater part of your work, your efforts to do justice to Henry are happy, and unquestionably candid and sincere. But I think it can be made manifest, that toward the close of it, you have done flagrant injustice to that truly great man, who deserved even to the latest period of his life, the approbation and admiration of every impartial mind. The charge of having done intentional injustice as a biographer of Mr. Henry, is a serious charge. I pledge myself to make it good.

The portraits you have drawn of the contemporaries of Henry are deserving of great admiration. They are elegant models of delineation of character. The portrait of R. H. Lee is indeed a masterpiece—it is sketched with the genius of Salvador, or finished "with the bright and mellow tints of Claude Lorraine." But will I do not think you have correctly delineated him. I quote the elegant words of one well qualified to judge, and possessed of sources of correct information—"R. H. Lee was unquestionably a graceful orator, but his elegance was natural. His mind had the treasures of various knowledge, to which he could re-dily resort: but on occasions of importance he studiously prepared himself for debate. He knew when and how to be diffuse and copious, but strength and conciseness were the characteristics of his eloquence." To this let me add the opinion of Dr. Rush, who had listened to him with admiration on occasions of the deepest interest. Speaking of R. H. Lee, he says, "I never knew so great an orator whose speeches were so short; indeed, I might almost say that he could not speak long. He conceived his subject so clearly, and presented it so immediately to his hearers, that there appeared nothing more to be said about it. He did not use figures to ornament discourse, but made them the vehicles of argument." You will perceive a difference between these sketches and your own. But I do not complain of any incorrectness in the character you have given us of R. H. Lee as an orator. The friends of that great man feel gratified that your pen has sketched a character of him in one of its finest efforts. I complain of injustice done him as a practical statesman.

In page 108 of your work, you say, "It is due, however, to historic truth to record that the superior powers of these great men were manifested only in debate. When called down from the heights of declamation to the severer tests of business, &c. they were completely thrown into the shade." This I am inclined to think is not in general true of Henry, and I know is untrue of R. H. Lee. As a composer he was eminently successful. Many of the most eloquent, classical and vigorous documents of the old congress are from his pen, adopted by that body without the alteration of a word. This can be substantiated by MSS. now in the possession of his family. Had I the journal of the old congress by me, I could point out several specimens which have met with the highest encomiums. The subject of one I recollect, which will enable an enquirer to find it by a reference to the index—it is a resolve of thanks to the Livery of London, for a petition of that body to parliament in behalf of their fellow subjects in America.* That R. H. Lee was great in details, I infer from the fact that for several successive years, years too of our gloomiest prospects, he was the chairman of the military committee, and of other important committees. The high estimation in which general Washington, as well as congress, is known to have considered him as chairman of the military committee, sufficiently proves how far he was great in details. Authentic MSS. can here too be appealed to. Charles Thompson, the clerk of congress, always spoke in strong terms of his astonishing talent for difficult and perplexing business. It is here I remark in justice which I would by no means suppose intentionally committed. When the public demands another edition of your elegant memoir, I will seek the pleasure of a personal interview, and from undeniable evidence prove that it is due to historic truth to record that R. H. Lee, whether in arranging dry details or rousing indignation at the wrongs of his country, was equally and wonderfully great.

Permit me now, sir, to call your attention to the great and good Henry. With deep regret, I assure you, this call I make. I have said you have done him intentional injustice. You have, sir, endeavored to stultify that mammoth champion of law and liberty. You have endeavored to cast over that mind of light, the mists of dotage—over that firm and erect soul, the weakness of senility: to present to us "in dim eclipsed, disastrous twilight shedding," that sun "whose setting splendour," to use your own words, "were beautiful and touching," and that too, "while the west was still in a blaze by his descending glory."

This you will say is declamation. Now for facts. You have successively vindicated Henry from the charge of postscript, by shewing the supposition to be unfounded, that he had previously committed himself to the democratic to any other party, except the great American party of liberty and republicanism! But where was the dignity, the independence of the biographer, when you labor to prove Henry a dotard, because conviction, to which a powerful mind had led him, enlisted him in the years 1775 and 1779, on the side of the general government; enlisted him, (again to use your own words) "in company with the father of his country." Was he too a dotard, "an infirm old man." You make this unwarrantable attack on Henry through his body. Page 591, you say, "In the year 1797, his health began to decline, and continued to sink gradually to the moment of his death. He had now passed through a stormy life, to the 60th year, and the vigor of his mind, exhausted more by past toils than by years, began to give way." It will be seen that Judge Winston stated that Henry's health began to decline, and you, sir, by a clumsy sophistry, wish to persuade us that his mind had lost its vigor. A pity!

* This petition of the Livery of London was written by Arthur Lee, esq. who was practising law in London. The quarrel had not yet broken out into war. This circumstance affords an interesting anecdote. One brother was thus, in the name of congress, thanking his brother without knowing it, for his virtuous efforts in the cause of his country.

† Judge Winston.

viologist might insist that toils may wear out the vigor of the body, but from what metaphysician did you learn that bold and vigorous thoughts, the toil of mind, robbed it of its energy. Locke and Steward deny it, and even J. J. Rousseau would not be caught by your analogy between the decay of the body and the lapse of mind. Not his passions might be more cool and his fire abated—but his judgment was more mature, and reason, strong and clear, governed with grand authority his intellectual system.

"The graceful foliage storms might leave. The noble stem they could not grieve."

Upon what authority do you speak of Henry, in 1798, as "an infirm old man?" The intrinsic evidence of your work refutes your idea that the mind of Henry had sunk under the attacks of age and disease. The state, and his opponents still thought him a Goliath, and were deposing their Davids, who depended not on the strength of Jehoshaphat, to oppose him. I quote once more your own words at p. 596. "His intention having been generally known for sometime before the period of the state elections, the most formidable preparations were made to oppose him in the assembly. Mr. Madison, Mr. Giles, of Amelia; Mr. Taylor, of Caroline—Mr. Nichols, of Albemarle; and a host of young men of shining talents from every part of the state, were arrayed in the adverse ranks, &c. But heaven in its mercy, saved him from the unequal conflict." Here is evidence not to be evaded, that Henry's mind was still great and unclouded, or why array the "host of shining talents" against the infirm, the fading genius of Henry! If you be really disposed to rest in pious reflection on the unquestionable wisdom which directed the dispensation that took Henry from his country, "Heaven" indeed in mercy, "saved his antagonist from the unequal conflict."

You say, have justly acquired the fame of eloquence, and consequently the character of boldness, independence and magnanimity. To what have you here sacrificed these great and exalted characteristics of mind—to the moloch of party spirit. And does that spirit still live? Does it find a temple in the breast of Mr. Wirt—will he consent to become its priest? Will he officiate in the sacrifice even of Henry's intellect at its foot shrine? Can it be that Mr. Wirt supposed that in Virginia that ungrateful, grovelling and detestable spirit still exists, which denied to the memory of her great statesman, orator and patriot, the funeral honors of a legislative vote; which led the representatives of his native state to belie the feelings of her citizens, and to "lay on the table" an honorary resolution in honor, because he did not agree with a majority in political sentiments.

Why was it that while, as a man as a biographer, you were "fondly scattering flowers over his tomb," you planted the thistles and the thorn?

"In molles violas, in purpureos narcissos Carduus et spinis surgit palustris aculeis."

I have, sir, perhaps taken an unwarrantable liberty with you—but I thought I was standing over the grave of Henry. SAUNTON, Feb. 16. NRPUS.

Alex'a. Common Council

AN ACT

For raising a revenue for the year of thousand eight hundred and eighteen. Section 1. Be it enacted by the Common Council of the town of Alexandria That the following taxes be levied on the people and property of the town, to meet the current expenses of the present year viz:

On all houses and lots at the rate of fifteen cents on every hundred dollars their assessed value.

On every male tytheable one dollar and fifty cents.

On every horse one dollar.

On every four wheeled riding carriage six dollars.

On every tavern license thirty dollars.

On every cow twenty-five cents.

On every license to sell horses or the twenty five dollars.

On every male dog five dollars.

On every female dog ten dollars.

Section 2. And be it further enacted that to meet the local expediture of the several wards of the town, the following taxes be levied in addition to foregoing, that is to say: upon all houses and lots within the First Ward at the rate of one and a half cents—upon houses and lots within the Second Ward at the rate of twelve and an half cents on all houses and lots within the Third Ward at the rate of twenty cents—on all houses and lots within the Fourth Ward at the rate of twenty cents—each hundred dollars of their assessed value.

Section 3. And be it further enacted That it shall be the duty of the collector after the amount shall have been paid in their hands for collection, to pay to collect the aforesaid taxes, and to keep for the same if necessary.

ALSO,
These celebrated bitters are composed purely of vegetables of the most innocent, yet specific virtues, and are infinitely superior to any thing yet discovered, for restoring weak and decayed constitutions, strengthening the stomach, increasing the appetite, and by the frequent use of them, they are a certain preventive against those complaints so common in the spring and fall seasons, such as intermittent fevers, and agues, long Autu-mual fevers, dysenteries, &c. They are also of infinite service to those in the seafaring line, who make long voyages at sea; and are exposed to unhealthy climates; a preventive against contagious disorders—they are also a very pleasant bitter and are particularly recommended for the use of Taverns and Public Houses,
as well as private families.
